

---

Contributors

Joe Atkins is a professor of journalism at the University of Mississippi. A veteran journalist and former congressional correspondent, he is the editor and co-author of The Mission: Journalism, Ethics and the World, a book of essays published by the Iowa State Press in 2002. A frequent writer on labor issues, he organized a "Conference on Labor and the Southern Press" at the University of Mississippi in October 2003 and is working on a book on the same topic.

Jim Hale is a veteran of 25 years as a reporter/editor for various newspapers. He is now working on a graduate degree in media theory and research, as well as teaching at Southern Illinois University Carbondale. jbhale@siu.edu

John Magney is an assistant professor in the School of Information Science and Applied Technology at Southern Illinois University Carbondale. He teaches and does research on labor relations and other topics in technical management. He has been a longtime activist in the campus Faculty Association.

Kathy Menzie teaches in the mass media department at Washburn University, Topeka, Kansas. She has spoken about academic freedom at several conferences and venues in Kansas. She just completed her Ph.D. in Communication Studies at the University of Kansas.

Shannon Petrello is a multi-media artist living and working in the San Francisco Bay Area. Her artistic career began in professional dance, later moving into visual art studies. She can be contacted at spetrello@hotmail.com.

James Tracy is assistant professor of journalism and media studies at Florida Atlantic University. He is presently conducting research on the relationship between newspapers, labor, and technology in postwar America.

Darrell Varga is Canada Research Chair in Contemporary Film and Media Studies at NSCAD University, Nova Scotia, Canada. He has produced a number of documentaries, published widely on Canadian and other cinemas, and is editor of the books: Working on Screen: Representations of the Working Class in Canadian Cinema (University of Toronto Press, 2006) and the forthcoming Rain, Drizzle, Fog: Essays on Atlantic Canadian Film and Television.

---