

Cover Image

Taken in mid-July 2010, as I was leaving one conference praising the potential of one media technology on route to one that examined global impact, I came across this moment of resistance in a public space near Big Ben and Westminster Abbey. While economists and businessmen were still touting the free market as the savior, it was heartening to see both resistance and insistence that there are, in fact, other possibilities.

Randy Nichols
Bentley University