

Betula nigra (river birch) is an important tree in Native American traditional medicine. In this issue investigators from the University of Alabama in Huntsville have collected and analyzed the essential oils from the buds, leaves, and bark of river birch for chemical content and biological activities.